1. Key Concepts and GDPR

1.1. WHAT IS PERSONAL INFORMATION?

The Privacy Act defines "personal information" to mean information or an opinion, whether true or not, and whether recorded in a material form or not, about an identified individual or an individual whose identity is reasonably identifiable, from the information or opinion.

1.2. WHAT IS SENSITIVE INFORMATION?

- a. Sensitive information is a subset of personal information. In general, we attempt to limit the collection of sensitive information.
- b. We may collect certain types of sensitive information depending on the context and where you have consented to the collection of such information. Generally, we will obtain this type of consent from you at (or around) when we collect the information, but the main type of sensitive information that we may collect (if any) will usually relate to:
 - i. the criminal record of an individual; and
 - ii. the health or medical information about an individual.

This will primarily occur when we seek (or consider) to engage an individual as an employee, contractor or a customer, or otherwise where you volunteer such information or if it is necessary for a purposes of collection set out in paragraph 3.

1.3. WHAT IS CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION AND HOW IS IT TREATED DIFFERENTLY?

- a. Confidential information is a separate concept to “personal information” and “sensitive information”. Personal information and sensitive information are regulated by the Privacy Act whereas confidential information is regulated by general law and contract.
- b. It is important that you understand that Imdex treats confidential information differently to the way it treats non-confidential personal information and sensitive information under this policy.
- c. If Imdex has access to, or collects, any information or data which is confidential, then Imdex will take all possible measures to ensure that information remains confidential and is not disclosed to anyone else unless we have your permission to do so. Generally speaking, any permitted uses or disclosures associated with confidential information and data will be set out in the relevant contract Imdex has with you.
- d. In particular, Imdex will take all reasonable steps to ensure that any confidential data (including all geochemical, image data and spectral data) uploaded to, or collected by, software applications licensed to you by Imdex:
 - i. will not be disclosed to Imdex personnel outside of the responsible Imdex business unit; and
 - ii. will be disclosed only to Imdex personnel bound by confidentiality obligations and who have a “need to know”, in connection with the provision of services to you.
- e. The rest of this policy concerns only “personal information” and “sensitive information”. Please review the terms of your contract(s) with Imdex for more information on how Imdex treats your confidential information.

1.4. GDPR

Please note that the GDPR Privacy Notice Schedule as attached applies to those companies of the IMDEX group established within the European Economic Area and to those IMDEX group companies to the extent they process personal data of EU individuals when offering their goods or services to EU individuals or monitoring their behavior.
